Historically Accurate Hardware

A look at companies making high-end knobs, hinges, latches and levers for period buildings.

BY SARAH SHEMKUS

Everyone understands that hardware is necessary, yet hinges, latches, knobs, and escutcheons often seem like aesthetic afterthoughts. The work produced by the six companies here, however, proves that these physically small design elements can have an outsized effect on the style and impact of a project.

Whether you are looking for a 1920s Art Deco style or are in search of glass knobs for a Greek Revival farmstead, these companies are the perfect place to find the touches that tie together your design.

E.R. BUTLER

The hardware pieces E.R. Butler produces are not reproductions: They are historically accurate recreations of designs from American history, explains company owner Rhett Butler. Most of the designs the company sells are at least 100 years old, with some dating as far back as the 18th century.

But E.R. Butler doesn't merely copy old designs; it captures the details, techniques, and intent of the originals, Butler says.

"It stays true to what was made when it was originally made," he says. "There is that attention to details, that attention to the history."

To inform this philosophy of authenticity, E.R. Butler has amassed an archive of more than 10,000 drawings, vintage catalogs, and ephemera. Butler regularly visits historic homes throughout New England and New York to further develop his understanding of the forms and functions of period hardware designs.

Though the company's designs strive to embody the past, the production process—and the resulting quality—is thoroughly modern, Butler says.

"While we are continuing traditional designs, we do also use very modern technology to achieve very, very tight tolerances on our products," he says.

P.E. GUERIN

The company—the oldest decorative hardware firm in the United States—began when founder Pierre Emmanuel Guerin emigrated from Brittany, France, to New York City in the mid 19th-century, bringing with him the craft of handmade hardware.

Since the beginning, the company's dedication to casting and detailing its work by hand has never wavered, vice president Martin Grubman says. Each piece is cast in fine-grain sand at the company's foundry, then sent to the fourth floor to be cleaned, filed, and polished by hand. Embossing and contouring are added using textured chisels and hammers to create richly detailed work.

"We do all kinds of handwork that no one else in this country does," Grubman says.

P.E. Guerin is most famous for its 18th-century French and English hardware designs. But the company, founded in 1857, was around—and designing—through the Art Nouveau movement of the 1890s, Art Deco in the 1920s, and Mid-century Modern in the 1950s. Today, its catalog reflects its deep and rich history, Grubman says.

"We are so much more," he says. "We can do anything, literally anything."

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HARDWARE

Rocky Mountain Hardware was founded in 1994, but its story begins a few years earlier, when owner Mark Nickum ran a successful door and window showroom. High-end clients, he noticed, were often looking for hardware pieces that just didn't exist. He saw an opportunity to launch a business focused on creating beautiful, upscale hardware custom crafted for each client.

The result was Rocky Mountain Hardware, a manufacturer that runs its own bronze foundry, casting and finishing knobs, pulls, hooks, and handles to customer specifications. Each item goes through a rigorous, 20-step process to ensure the details are just right.

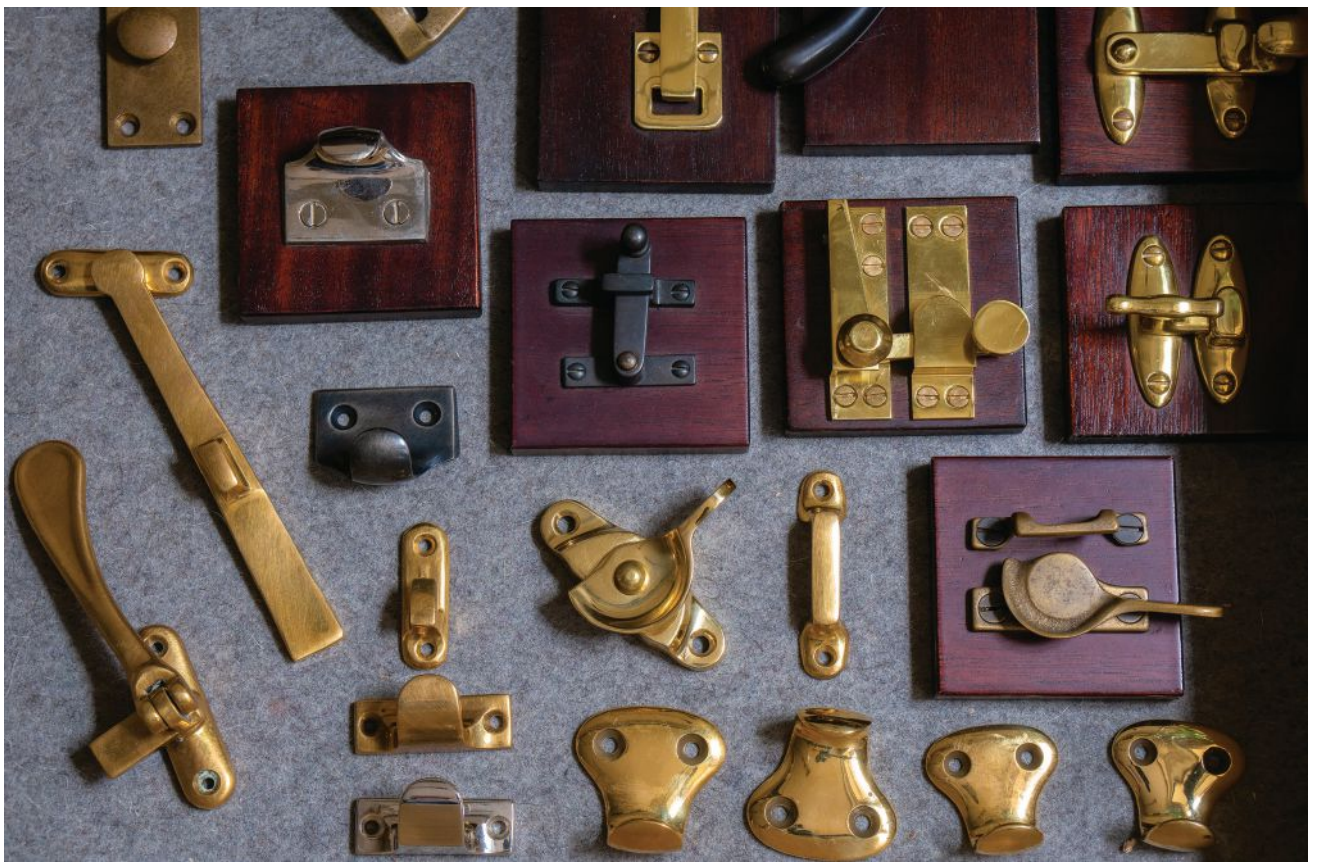

"Everything is made just for the person who's ordering them," says marketing director Christine Kirby.

Today, the company offers 24 different collections, each of which can receive one of 12 hand-applied finishes. Clients looking for a unique design can request small modifications to existing designs or work with the company to create a new look from scratch.

Rocky Mountain's design styles run from the rustic to the modern, though all are united by the natural qualities of bronze.

"Bronze inherently has an organic texture," Kirby says. "It's very warm and beautiful."

RIGHT P.E. Guerin produces Art Deco pieces that lend a more contemporary look to a design.

S.A. BAXTER

Forward-looking signature styles and a sustainable production process are what make S.A. Baxter stand out from the crowd, says owner Scott Baxter, who started the company in 2006 when he was unable to find hardware that suited his tastes during his own home-building process.

Clients can choose from project-ready designs or work with in-house designers to create unique custom looks. The company's approach combines contemporary aesthetics with classic style to produce designs that are at once fresh and timeless. Art Deco, Bauhaus, Georgian, and Arts and Crafts influences can be seen in S.A. Baxter's collections.

Baxter decided early on that the whole process should be as sustainable as possible. All of the company's brass is lead-free, which has helped them cut back on energy use and create a nearly smoke-free foundry. A recycling program means the foundry produces very little wastewater, and eco-friendly machinery and equipment keep emissions exceptionally low.

"We are very proud," Baxter says. "We have an extremely green facility."

Still need evidence of their quality? S.A. Baxter's work is in-demand globally.

"We're all over the world now," Baxter says. "We've done projects in six of the seven continents —we're still working on Antarctica."

SUN VALLEY BRONZE

When builder Robert Commons was unable to find hardware with the style and quality he wanted, he decided to make it himself. In 1992, this approach became Sun Valley Bronze. Today, the company offers one of the widest selections of bronze architectural door, window, kitchen and bath hardware, and lighting available anywhere.

"Our collection is just huge," says creative director Aimee Commons. "We have just about everything you can think of to accessorize your home."

Strength and sustainability are at the core of Sun Valley Bronze's entire line-up of products. A unique production process ensures pieces resist corrosion and are exceptionally durable. When the company brought in a machine to test the strength of the hardware, the machine broke before the pieces being tested gave in, Aimee Commons says.

CLOCKWISE FROM BELOW
Many of P.E. Guerin's designs are from 18th-century French and English models.

All finish work at P.E. Guerin is done meticulously by hand.

Each piece of P.E. Guerin hardware is cast at its New York foundry.

The Golden Lion was established in 1994 and brings high-end European hardware to the United States.

The company is also committed to being as green as possible. Scraps from casting are recycled and used in later castings, and the company was recognize by the state of Idaho for its efforts to use less hazardous chemicals and reuse waste heat from its foundry.

Styles range from traditional through transitional and contemporary, but if nothing strikes your fancy, Sun Valley Bronze will be happy to help you create a personal design; in fact, some 40% of the company's work is custom-made.

GOLDEN LION

Whether you're looking for boldly colored Rococo door handles, Art Deco cabinet knobs, or ornate hinges, The Golden Lion has what you're looking for.

"We have thousands of products and they are all as beautiful as the next," says owner Arnaud Massonnat. "It is craftsmanship developed over centuries."

Founded in 1994, The Golden Lion aims to unite Old World beauty and workmanship with the most modern service and attention to detail. The company works with suppliers across Europe to import the finest pieces. Their inventory includes not just knobs and handles and hinges, but everything you could need to embellish your home, including fountain spouts, front-door peepholes, decorative nails, picture hooks, and elaborate brass moldings.

The Golden Lion works with customers to create detailed proposals and schedules, including all needed pieces for a given project. When projects are nearby enough, site visits during the installation process help ensure quality.

TRADITIONAL BUILDING CONFERENCE

MATERIALS & METHODS

SPONSORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

Three in-person events planned this year:

April 7-8, 2020
at the Lyceum, Alexandria's History Museum in Alexandria, Virginia

July 15-16, 2020
at Salve Regina University Antone Academic Center
In Newport, Rhode Island

October 21-22, 2020
at the Woman's Club of Evanston in Evanston, Illinois

The Traditional Building Conference Series serves over 1,500 professionals a year: architects; contractors; specialty contractors and building artisans; interior designers, building owners and facilities managers who do residential and/or commercial/institutional work on historic buildings. In addition to three in-person events there will be nine online education seminars throughout the year. This delivers our AIA approved education to a national audience in markets which do not support an in-person conference. Online education has been a proven winner for reaching busy architects and building owners, especially buyers and specifiers who labor behind the scenes and are hard to get appointments with.

The Traditional Building Conference venues are interesting, intimate, historic spaces which are living laboratories for learning. We go where the work is and where attendees want to be.

If you'd like to be on our sponsor team this year, call Peter H. Miller, Hon AIA, at 202.256.0694 or email him at pmiller@aimmedia.com.

HOW TO USE THIS GUIDEBOOK

Welcome to the 2020 Guidebook. For this year's Guidebook the editors have selected 225+ COMPANIES whose products or services meet the ever-growing need of architects, builders, developers, conservators, facility managers, property owners, and those who work preserving, restoring, renovating, and creating new buildings in traditional styles. You can find these in our Product & Service Index starting on page 30.

Granted, most of this material can eventually be found on Google—if you spend lots of time sifting through all the undifferentiated results Google floods you with. To save you time, the editors of TRADITIONAL BUILDING have done all the sifting for you. As a result, the listings in this issue provide:

- CURATED LISTS Only products and services appropriate for buildings in traditional architectural styles have been included.
- SYNERGY & SURPRISE DISCOVERIES Because the editors have carefully grouped like-with-like, these listings allow you to make surprise discoveries of things you weren't looking for—but which are extremely helpful. It's just like searching for movies and seeing related titles you hadn't known about.

The Product & Service Index is divided into 20 MASTER CATEGORIES (listed below) and there are 650+ SUB-CATEGORIES therein. There is comprehensive cross-referencing across the categories. For example, if you look for Gazebos in the Landscape section, we will refer you to the Conservatories, Greenhouses & Outbuildings section where you will find the sub-category for Gazebos.

Once you find the sub-category you are looking for, you will see a list of companies that provide that product or service. To learn more about each company, see the Company Listings (starting on this page) which has a description with contact information for every company in the index.

There are many more companies we maintain information on that due to space limitations we are unable to publish in the magazine. Please visit www.traditionalbuilding.com and there you'll find over 1000+ companies broken down by the same 20 master categories and 150+ sub-categories.

Lastly, we feature companies with a photo of their work in the Portfolio starting on page 42.
